Emergency Preparedness

When emergencies happen, the situation can escalate quickly. Actions taken in the first few seconds are critical and can be lifesaving. Valcom's IP6000 SiteManager® Software solution is a key instrument in preparing for potential threats whether those threats are man-made or weather-related. Preparation helps you deliver real-time information to people within your organization so they can stay safe and informed during an emergency situation.

The IP6000 SiteManager® Software helps you free up valuable resources by automating functions with a single click. Send consistent messages across your facility and perform other daily paging and notifications.

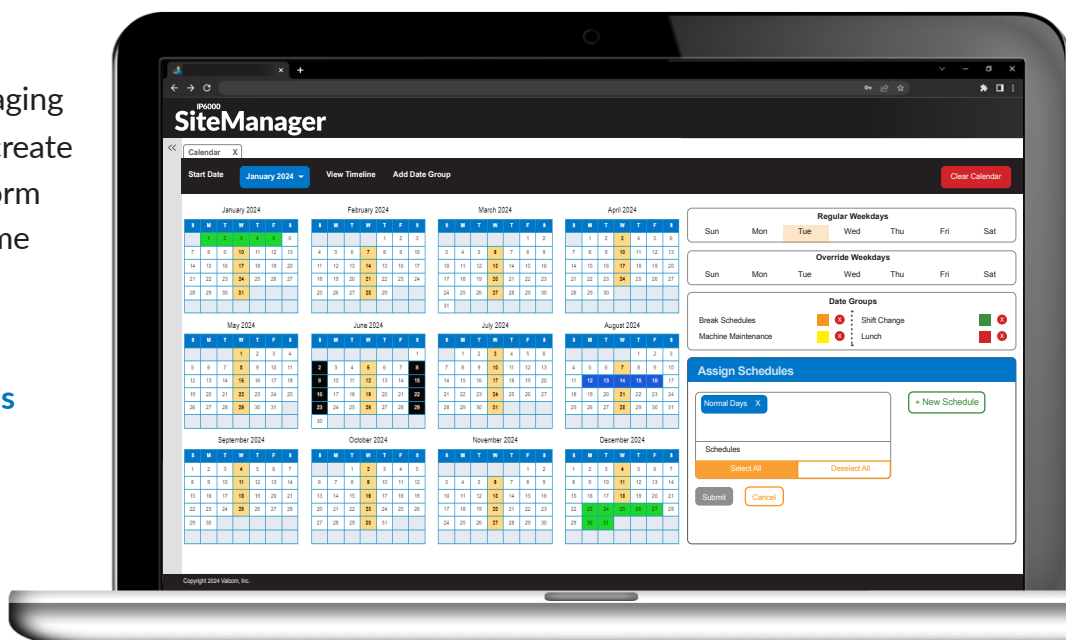

Daily Communications

Valcom's IP6000 SiteManager® Software enables you to keep individuals in the know and protected throughout your organization. Being able to communicate with your employees and customers is vital to your business' success. You have a significant challenge of communicating across multiple departments, buildings and geographical locations to keep everyday functions up and running. And most importantly, to be prepared to shift gears on a moment's notice to alert individuals in emergency situations. Valcom's extensive product line for voice paging, LED Signs, automated shift and break tones, can help you develop a solution for your facility.

Versatility

You can leverage existing messaging systems with SiteManager® to create one seamless notification platform working in concert to deliver time sensitive information to people throughout your organization.

- Efficient daily communications
- Automation for repetitive events
- Browser-based calendars and bell schedules
- Time collaboration and time management
